Ecclesiastes

The Book of Ecclesiastes<sup>1</sup> is unparalleled in the whole range of Biblical Literature. Ernest Renan spoke of it as the only charming book that was ever written by a Jew. Heinrich Heine called it the Canticles of Skepticism, while Franz Delitzsch thought it was entitled to the name of the Canticles of the Fear of God. From the earliest times down to the present age Ecclesiastes has attracted the attention of thinkers. It was a favorite book of Frederick the Great, who referred to it as a Mirror of Princes. But Biblical students of all ages have experienced some difficulties about this remarkable production. Some in the Jewish Church denied the inspired character of the work, until the synod of Jabneh (90 A. D.) decided in favor of the canonicity of the Book. The genuine portions of Ecclesiastes are out of place in the Canon. Their author is not a theologian, but a man of the world, probably a physician, with keen observation, penetrating insight, and vast experience.<sup>2</sup>

I believe that the genuine portions of Ecclesiastes were written by a prominent Sadducean physician in Jerusalem, who was born at the beginning of the reign of Antiochus Epiphanes (175–164) and died in the first decade of the reign of Alexander Jannæus (104–78 B. C.).<sup>3</sup> Ecclesiastes may have been a son of David, just as Jesus and Hillel<sup>4</sup> were sons of David; he may even have been a king in Jerusalem, if we take king to mean head of a school.<sup>1</sup> The term king is used in this way in the Talmud (Gitt. 62<sup>a</sup>; Ber. 64<sup>a</sup>). The Book was probably published after the death of the author, who may have worked on it for more than forty years. Nietzsche would have called it eins der erlebtesten Bücher. The three or four interpolations<sup>5</sup> suggesting that this pessimistic poem was a work of the wise king of Israel, Solomon ben-David (about 950 B. C.) may be due to the friends of the author, who edited the book.<sup>6</sup> On the other hand, there are a great many Pharisaic interpolations directly opposing the Epicurean<sup>7</sup> teaching set forth in the poem. The genuine portions of Ecclesiastes are Sadducean and Epicurean; Stoic doctrines are found almost exclusively in the Pharisaic interpolations.<sup>8</sup>

Ecclesiastes must have been a Sadducee; for he doubts the immortality of the soul and the resurrection of the body (3, 21). He must have been a physician; otherwise he could not have given the enumeration of the symptoms of senile decay in the beautiful allegorical description at the end of the Book. He must have been born under the reign of Antiochus Epiphanes (175–164); for in 4, 13–16 he says that he saw the general enthusiasm for the poor but wise youth (i. e., Alexander Balas) who succeeded (150 B. C.) to the throne of the old and foolish king (i. e., Antiochus Epiphanes).<sup>9</sup> Ecclesiastes also states, at the end of c. 9, that he saw the successful defense of the small place (Bethsura) against the great king (Antiochus Eupator, 163 B. C.).<sup>10</sup>

Schopenhauer<sup>11</sup> says that no one can fully appreciate Ecclesiastes until he is seventy, and we may safely assume that Ecclesiastes had reached the age of three score years and ten when he finished his work. If we suppose that he was born in the first year of the reign of Antiochus Epiphanes, he would have been eight years old at the beginning of the Maccabean rising in 167 B. C., and twelve at the time of the siege of Bethsura in 163 B. C.<sup>10</sup> If he was in Bethsura with his family during the siege, it would not be surprising that this event made a strong impression on him. At the time of the nuptials of Alexander Balas in 150,<sup>9</sup> he would have been 25, or 22 at the beginning (153) and 30 at the end (145) of Alexander's meteoric career.

He may have completed his Book at the age of 75, in 100 B. C., but he may not have published it during his lifetime, and his friends and disciples, who desired to make known this remarkable legacy, may have deemed it imprudent to publish it under the name of its author; therefore they tried to make it appear to be a work of King Solomon,<sup>6</sup> especially as several passages might have been referred to the king then reigning, viz., Alexander Jannæus (104–78 B. C.).<sup>12</sup> The pessimistic poem may have caused such a sensation that it was impossible to suppress it. The Pharisaic authorities therefore decided to save the attractive book for the Congregation but to pour some water into the author's strong wine.<sup>13</sup> This official recension, which was not castrated but figleaved, may have been prompted by the apocryphal book known as the Wisdom of Solomon,<sup>14</sup> which was composed at Alexandria about 50 B. C. The Wisdom of Solomon (cf. especially c. 2) is directed against Ecclesiastes, and the Pharisaic authorities may have deemed it necessary to clear Jerusalem of the suspicion of Epicureanism.<sup>7</sup> They may have been afraid that the Egyptian Jews might eventually abandon their annual pilgrimages to Jerusalem, preferring to worship at the Temple founded at Leontopolis by Onias IV. about 160 B. C.<sup>15</sup> This Jewish Temple in Egypt existed until 73 A. D., when it was closed by the Romans after the destruction of Jerusalem.

The confusion of the traditional text of Ecclesiastes may be partly accidental, partly intentional.<sup>16</sup> The original manuscript may have been left by the author without a final revision; he may have left a number of parallels and variants<sup>17</sup> without indicating his final preference. This confusion was increased by the editorial changes introduced by the friends of the author, who published the work after his death.<sup>6</sup> It was further increased by the polemical interpolations of

(5) Eccl. 1, 1. 12. 16<sup>b</sup>; cf. 2, 12<sup>b</sup> (= I, a; VI, a, ε; VII, ρ).

(6) They may have transposed sections VI and VII to the beginning of the Book in order to emphasize the passages which might be referred to Solomon.

(7) Like Epicurus (341–270 B. C.) Ecclesiastes commends companionship (4, 9) and cheerfulness (9, 7) but also contentment (6, 9) and moderation in sensual pleasures, to avoid painful consequences (11, 10). He warns against wrongdoing, since it entails punishment (7, 17; 5, 6). He does not deny (5, 2) the existence of God but he disbelieves a moral order of the universe; divine influence on this world, where there is so much imperfection and evil, seems to him impossible (see especially section II). In the same way he doubts the immortality of the soul (3, 21); death ends all consciousness (9, 10). He by no means commends nothing but eating, and drinking, and pleasure (8, 15; 2, 24; 5, 18; cf. 3, 12); he also preaches the gospel of work (3, 22; 9, 10). Cf. below, n. 4 on III; n. 9 on VIII.

Ecclesiastes' Epicurean Ceterum censeo that nought is good for man but eating, and drinking, and pleasure (8, 15; 2, 24; 5, 18; cf. 3, 12) is condemned by Jesus (Luke 12, 20) in a section which contains several allusions to the Book of Ecclesiastes (cf. Luke 12, 18 and Eccl. 2, 4; Luke 12, 20<sup>b</sup> and Eccl. 2, 18<sup>b</sup>, and above all, Luke 12, 27 = Matt. 6, 29 (Solomon in all his glory). Note also vv. 29, 30. Μὴ μετεωρίζεσθε (Luke 12, 29) means: Do not be at sea (cf. Thuc. 8, 16) i. e., in a state of uncertainty, do not go astray (cf. Pol. 5, 70, 10). The Peshita renders: Let not your mind stray in these things (wš-lâ nîfhê rî-yânkhôn bš-hâlîn).

In the Talmud, Epikuros means 'freethinker'; it is there a synonym of the earlier term Sadducee 'righteous,' which seems to be a euphemism for 'unrighteous'; cf. nn. 31–34 to my paper on Ps. 1, in Hebraica, 19, 139 and below, n. 1 on II.

(8) Cf. e. g. below, n. 23 on VI.

(9) See below, n. 9 on III. Winckler (cf. above, n. 2) is right in identifying the old and foolish king with Antiochus Epiphanes, but the poor and wise youth is according to Winckler not Alexander Balas, but Demetrius I. Contrast below, n. 13 on III.

(10) See below, n. 6 on VI.

(12) For instance, 4, 14; 10, 16; 3, 16. Bêth-hassûrim, the house of outcasts (4, 14) is generally considered to be equivalent to bêth-hâ'asûrim, the house of prisoners, and this interpretation may have been common soon after the publication of the Book. Alexander Jannæus had been shut up in prison by his elder brother and predecessor Aristobulus (104/3 B. C.), the first Hasmonean King of the Jews, whose coronation is glorified in Ps. 2; see n. 22 to my paper in ZDMG 58, 629, cited below, at the end of n. 27. Neither Baumann (ZDMG 58, 587–595) nor Sievers (ZDMG 58, 864–866) have paid any attention to my remarks on Ps. 2 in Hebraica, 19, 134–146 and Johns Hopkins University Circulars, No. 163, p. 56, n. 17 (cf. ibid., p. 90). Aristobulus' widow, Queen Salma Alexandra, was 37 years old when she married his step-brother Alexander Jannæus, and he was 24. Alexander Jannæus was also said to be the son of a captive woman and therefore unfit for assuming priestly functions; cf. Joseph., Ant., iii, 12, 2; xiii, 10, 5; 13, 5.

(13) Cf. Georg Hoffmann, Hiob (Kiel, 1891) p. 25.

(14) Some of the orthodox glosses are derived from the Book of Ecclesiasticus; contrast Nöldeke, ZAT 20, 91.

(15) Cf. Schürer's work, cited above, n. 4, vol. 3, pp. 97-100.

(16) Bickell, Der Prediger über den Werth des Daseins (Innsbruck, 1884) endeavored to show that the confusion was due to the mistake of a binder who misplaced the quires of the manuscript; but this view is untenable.

(18) Cf. II, θ; IV, ι; VIII, η.

(19) Cf. II, β; V, σ; VII, ηη. θθ; VIII, τ. λ. ωω (v. 13).

(21) See my Book of Canticles (cited above, n. 3) p. 19.

(22) Explanatory scribal expansions, so common in other Books of the Old Testament, are comparatively rare in Ecclesiastes; cf. e. g. II, γ-ζ; III, ε. ζ. λ. ο. π; IV, α-γ. ο-τ. αα-γγ; V, ζ. v. ξ. ο. ττ; VI, ζ. κ. π. εε. ηη. λλ. μμ. οο; VII, α. δ-η. μ. ο. ξξ. οο; VIII, β-ζ. θ-κ. μ. v. ο. π. ββ-δδ. θθ. Nor are there many illustrative quotations (see my remarks, ZDMG 58, 626); cf. III, β. κ. ττ; IV, ι; V, γ. ρ. υυ; VI, φ; VIII, ωω (v. 11).

(23) I interpreted the Book again during the session 1903/4, also during the session 1894/5.

(25) In Kautzsch, Die Heilige Schrift des Alten Testaments (Freiburg i. B., 1894).

(26) In Nowack's Handkommentar zum Alten Testament (Göttingen, 1898); cf. above, n. 2. Siegfried asked me (March 30, 1897) to place my reconstruction of the text at his disposal, but I declined his request. His commentary showed that he had misunderstood the oral explanations which I had given him on various occasions.

(27) The translation is there printed in lines, just as Samuel Cox printed his translation of Ecclesiastes in lines, in the Expositor's Bible (London, 1890) pp. 69-110; but Cox's stichic arrangement is as unsatisfactory as Sievers' metrical analysis of the first two chapters in his Studien zur hebräischen Metrik, part 2 (Leipzig, 1901) pp. 563-567. According to Zapletal, Die Metrik des Buches Kohelet (Freiburg, Switzerland, 1904) the entire Book of Ecclesiastes, which was written in the third century B. C., is metrical, even the Epilogue; but there is no strophic division; see op. cit., pp. 6. 10. 13. Zapletal's pamphlet appeared after the publication of my metrical reconstruction of Ecclesiastes in Koheleth oder Weltschmerz in der Bibel (Leipzig, 1905; I finished the final revision of the proofs on Sept. 15, 1904, and received the first copies of the book in Baltimore on Oct. 24, 1904) but Zapletal's prefatory note informs us that the discovery that the Book of Ecclesiastes is metrical was made by him during the session 1903/4. He was therefore in no way influenced by my metrical version of Ecclesiastes which I read at the general meeting of the Second International Congress on the History of Religions at Basle, on Sept. 1, 1904, nor by my metrical reconstruction of the Hebrew text which I exhibited in the Semitic Section of that Congress, although Zapletal attended the Congress and read a paper on Ecclesiastes' belief in the immortality of the soul at one of the meetings of the Semitic Section. This coincidence is evidently an interesting case of sympathy, unless Zapletal exercised some telepathic influence on me, so that I was able to anticipate his discoveries before he published them. I have alluded to some similar psychic phenomena in n. 36 to my paper The Prototype of the Magnificat in the Journal of the German Oriental Society (ZDMG 58, 630).

(28) I stated e. g. in n. 5 to my lecture on Ecclesiastes, published in 1894, that the passages 2, 24<sup>b</sup>-26 (misprinted 24<sup>b</sup>, 26); 3, 13, 14<sup>b</sup>, 17; 5, 6<sup>b</sup>, 8, 18; 6, 6; 7, 13, 14. [18<sup>b</sup>]. 20, 26<sup>b</sup>-29 (misprinted 26<sup>b</sup>, 29); 8, 11-13; 9, 3, &c. consisted of subsequent additions. Ibid., n. 15 I pointed out that 4, 6 must be combined with 4, 4 (misprinted 7); 5, 9-11; 6, 7-9; and that 4, 5 as well as 10, 18 (misprinted 8), 15 are glosses to 4, 6 (see now section V). At the end of that note I called attention to the fact that Eccl. 7, 11, 12 must be combined with 7, 19; 8, 1; 9, 17<sup>a</sup>; 10, 2, 3, 12, 13, and that 10, 19<sup>b</sup> (misprinted 20<sup>b</sup>) is a gloss to 7, 12 (see now VI,  $\phi$ ). I added: "10, 1<sup>b</sup> belongs to 7, 16 (cf. 8, 14, 10; 7, 15-18; 9, 11, 12; 8, 11-13 is a theological gloss to 8, 14, &c.) while 10, 1<sup>a</sup> must be combined with 9, 18<sup>b</sup>" (see now II and VI,  $\phi$ ). In n. 45 I stated that 2, 11-23 should be arranged in the following order: 11, 12<sup>b</sup>, 19, 18, 20-23, 12<sup>a</sup>, 13-17, 24-26, and that the last five words of v. 12 and vv. 16<sup>b</sup>, 18<sup>b</sup> were glosses (see now VI and VII).

(29) See my paper on David's Dirge in the Johns Hopkins University Circulars, June, 1903, p. 55<sup>a</sup>.

(30) The genuine portions of Ecclesiastes, which may be arranged in eight sections, comprise 195 pairs of hemistichs with 3 + 3 beats, grouped either in couplets (Sections I, V, VIII) or in triplets (Sections II, III, IV, VI, VII). Pairs of hemistichs with 2 + 2 beats occur only in the interpolations (cf. IV,  $\xi$ , 8, 2 ff. and VI, a. \gamma. \eta), and in one illustrative quotation (cf. above, n. 22) VI,  $\phi$  we find 3 + 2 beats. The final section of the Book must be divided into two halves, just as I did in my lecture on Ecclesiastes published in 1894 (see above, n. 2). Each of these two halves consists of 3 and 5 couplets, respectively. Also section III must be divided into two halves, and each half consists of two stanzas, each stanza comprising two triplets. The opening section, on the other hand, consists of three stanzas, each stanza comprising four couplets. Cf. my strophic reconstruction of Moses' Song of Triumph (Hebraica, 20, 155) and the Song of Hannah (ZDMG 58, 620). In the older poetical books of the Old Testament the end of a line generally coincides with the end of a clause, but in Ecclesiastes we find a number of cases in which the end of a clause forms the beginning of the following line or hemistich. In modern poetry, as well as in Greek and Roman poems, this is, of course, quite common; but in Hebrew poetry it is comparatively rare. In the opening pair of hemistichs for instance (1, 2) we find 3 × 2 (or 4 + 2) beats instead of the regular 3 + 3 beats; in the same way we have in the second double-hemistich of section II (9, 2) 3 × 2 beats instead of 3 + 3 beats, unless we and he who delights in abundance,

 His income will never suffice him ;<sup>5</sup>
 this, too, is vanity and a striving for wind.
- 11 Whenever possessions increase,                                      iv
 Those also increase who consume them;
 What profit then has the possessor save the looking thereon with his eyes?<sup>6</sup>
- 12 The sleep of the plowman is sweet,                                   v whether scanty or ample his fare ;
 But the rich man's superabundance will not allow him to slumber.
- 4, 7 Again (and again) have I noted                                  vi a vanity<sup>7</sup> under the sun :
 8 A man without a companion,
 with never a son or a brother.
- And yet he toils on without ceasing,                               vii his eyes are never sated with riches ;

       Nought at all can he take along,
           in spite of toil, not a handful<sup>20</sup>
 16 This evil, too, is grievous :
       precisely as he came, he goes.

       What profit has he who toils for wind?

(vv) 4, 12 And a threefold cord                      is not quickly broken

(a) 1, 12 I, Ecclesiastes,<sup>8</sup> who (once) was King<sup>9</sup>
Over Israel in Jerusalem,
13 Set my heart to seek and sift,<sup>10</sup>
By wisdom, all done<sup>1</sup> under heaven.
It is a sore task which God has given
To sons of men, whereon to fret.
3, 10 The task I have seen, which God has given
To sons of men, whereon to fret.
8, 9<sup>a</sup> All this have I seen, and set my heart
On all the doings done<sup>1</sup> under the sun.

(3) 9, 1<sup>a</sup> All this I laid to heart, and all this saw my heart.

(γ) 7, 13 Consider the work of God:
who straightens<sup>aa</sup> what He has made crooked?
14 In days that are happy, be happy;
in unhappy, consider that God

1, 16 <sup>4</sup>I was greater and acquired more wisdom ii than any of my predecessors; <sup>6</sup>
17 But when I set my heart to learn wisdom, <sup>5</sup>
 I learned, it was a striving for wind. <sup>7</sup>
18 More wisdom is (merely) more worry;
 and increase of knowledge, more grief.

7, Made both the one and the other,
 but in such a way that no man
 Can find out what will be hereafter; <sup>11</sup>
 [this, too, is vanity and a striving for wind].

29 Consider but this: I have found
 That God has made all men upright;
 But they have sought many inventions. <sup>12</sup>

3, 14<sup>ββ</sup> Whatever God does, will be for ever;
 Nought can be added, and nought subtracted. <sup>13</sup>
 God has so done to make men fear Him.

(δ) 1, 16 I said to myself as follows: Lo, I

(ε) over <sup>14</sup>Jerusalem, and my mind has seen <sup>15</sup>much wisdom <sup>21</sup>and <sup>22</sup>learning

(ζ) 17 and to learn madness and folly

(η) 8, 16<sup>α</sup> When I set my heart to learn wisdom and to consider the task
17 which is performed on the earth, I saw that man cannot find out ⁂ the doings which are done <sup>1</sup>under the sun; however much a man may toil to seek, he cannot find it; and even if a wise man thinks he knows (it) he cannot find it. <sup>16</sup>

3, 11 All things He <sup>δδ</sup>has made befitting their season; <sup>17</sup>
 Yet He has veiled their mental vision, <sup>18</sup>
 So that no man can ever find out
 What He has done from first to last.

7, 23 All this with wisdom I tested, <sup>εε</sup> but it was beyond my reach; <sup>19</sup>

24 Beyond me <sup>19</sup>is what has been,
 and deep<sup>ςς</sup>— who can find it?

(ββ) 3, 14 I know that all

VII.

- 2, 1 I said to myself in my heart: i
     Come on, I will try thee with pleasure :
 [Take pleasure] and have a good time !
     but lo, even this, too, was vanity.
- 2 Of laughter I thought, it is mad ;
     and of pleasure, what does it avail ?<sup>1</sup>
- 3 I revolved in my mind how to quicken<sup>2 a</sup> ii
     my flesh,<sup>b</sup> and to lay hold on folly, Until I might (clearly) discover what is good for the sons of men,
 Which they may enjoy<sup>3</sup> under the sky
     the numbered<sup>4</sup> days of their life.<sup>7</sup>
- 4 I engaged in great works, and I built me iii (large) mansions, and planted me vineyards ;
 5 I laid out gardens and parks,
     and planted<sup>5</sup> all sorts of fruit trees.
 6 Pools<sup>5</sup> also I made me to water<sup>6</sup> a nursery full of young trees.<sup>6</sup>
- 7<sup>a</sup> Both bondmen and bondmaids I purchased, iv and slaves were born in my house ;<sup>5</sup> 8 I amassed both silver and gold, and the products of realms and of regions.
 I got singers, both male and female,
     and the delights of the sons of men.<sup>7</sup>

 20 So at last I began<sup>φ</sup> to despair<sup>10</sup> concerning all toils<sup>7</sup> of my toiling.<sup>λ</sup>
- 21 For is there<sup>11</sup> a man who has toiled                                 viii

Notes on Ecclesiastes.

I.

(1) The Greek word Ecclesiastes (Heb. Koheloth) does not denote an ecclesiastic or preacher, but one who addresses an ecclesia, or assembly, a public speaker (Lat. contionator) or lecturer (French conférencier) especially a public teacher of philosophy; cf. 12, 9 (VIII, 66).

(2) Lit., breath of breaths, i. e., How utterly transitory is everything. The Heb. term hebl means primarily breath, then anything as unsubstantial as a breath, anything that is in vain, i. e., vanishes as easily as a breath; hence a vain pursuit, a fruitless effort (cf. n. 10 on III). All is vain, without any real value, unsubstantial and idle, fruitless, ineffectual, useless, futile, unavailing. Ecclesiastes uses the term vanity also in the sense of a fact illustrating the vanity of everything, e. g. 8, 14 (II, iv): A vanity done on this earth is, and 4, 7 (V, vi): I have noted a vanity under the sun. Cf. n. 5 on VI.

(3) Lit., snorting. This refers to the horses (Phoebi anheli equi, Ovid, Metamorph. 15, 418) of the chariot of the sun (2 K 23, 11). The Heb. verb does not mean 'to pant from fatigue.'

(4) Lit., to the place whither the streams are going, there they return to go.

(5) Lit., wearying themselves; cf. n. 14 on V.

(6) Lit., the eye is not satisfied with seeing, and the ear is not filled with hearing.

(7) Overruling necessity, destiny.

(8) Lit., his name was called, an old Babylonian phrase for to exist. The cuneiform account of Creation begins: At the time when the heavens above were not called, nor the earth below had a name. A name is the expression of the impression; cf. Gen. 2, 19.

(9) Lit., it was already in the ages that were before us.

(10) Lit., there is no remembrance of former things.

(11) Lit., to all there is a while, i. e., a (short) space of time; cf. n. 11 on IV.

(12) Prop., temporary; lit., to everything there is a time. Nothing is timeless, termless, interminable.

(13) Just as the sea is never full, owing to the constant evaporation (Job 36, 27; JAOS 17, 162) of the water, although all streams run into it, so deaths counterbalance births. If the number of births increases, the mortality among the infants increases; if a great many people die, owing to epidemics, wars, famines, &c., this loss is offset by a marked increase in the number of marriages and births; so births and deaths are transient just as all other human actions. The power of conception and the capability of parturition last but a certain time (about thirty years), and mortality is greater in certain periods of life: it is high among infants; then it decreases up to the thirteenth year, when it begins to increase again. Even the greatest mortality in the most deadly epidemics lasts but a limited period. The Black Death in the sixteenth century raged for three years, 1348-1351, but was followed by a period of great blessings with a marked increase in the birth-rate. In the times of the Maccabees a philosopher in Palestine might have observed the same phenomena which we find in Germany after the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648). The first three decades (170-143) of the Maccabean period (167-63 B. C.) might be called, in some respects, the Thirty Years' War of Palestine.

(14) Dropping, casting off.

(15) For instance, a lost sheep (Ps. 119, 176); cf. n. 12 on IV.

(16) To perish in the wilderness, &c. Abandoning, forsaking.

(17) Lit., embracing and being distant.

(18) Lit., exulting, leaping for joy.

(19) This may mean 'head of a school.'

(20) In nature.

(21) By men; cf. I, 14; 8, 19<sup>a</sup> (VI, i and a).

(22) Hölderlin's Empedokles says,

*Geh! Fürchte nichts, Es kehret alles wieder,
Und was geschehen soll, ist schon geschehen.*

II.

(1) Righteous = orthodox, wise = godfearing; wicked = unorthodox, freethinker, Hellenizer; fool = agnostic, atheist; cf. Pss. 14, 1; 111, 10 (see also n. 15 on V and n. 36 on VI). In Dan. 12, 3 the faithful (orthodox) Jews are called they that are wise (or of understanding); cf. v. 10. The Book of Daniel was written about 164 B. C. when Ecclesiastes was perhaps ten years old.

(2) Lit., I returned and saw, i. e., I saw again (and again); I saw repeatedly; cf. IV, v; V, vi.

(3) Cf. note 2 on section I and n. 3 on VI.

(4) Lit., to whom it happens according to the work of the wicked.

(5) Cf. Isaiah 57, 2; Wisdom of Solomon 3, 3.

(6) That is, the holy city of Jerusalem. The Arabic name of Jerusalem is et-Kuds, Holiness.

(7) For instance, Judas Maccabzeus (1 Macc. 9, 18) and his elder brother Simon (1 Macc. 16, 16).

(8) Cf. Job 21, 7-15; 12, 6; Jer. 12, 1.

(9) Dignity.

(10) Cf. e. g., 1 Macc. 2, 41; Matt. 12, 1 ff.; Luke 14, 5.

(11) Big, prone.

(12) Lit., in them.

(13) Socrates was convinced that no one could harm a righteous man, since God would not forsake him; cf. 3, 15<sup>b</sup> (IV, e) and nn. 12, 23 on IV.

(14) In spite of the short duration of my life; cf. n. 3 on VIII.

(15) Cf. 6, 12<sup>a</sup> (VII, vv).

(1) Do not keep running to the Temple heedlessly, merely out of habit, or out of regard for other people. Consider when thou goest to the Temple, whither, why, and wherefore thou art going.

(2) Expounding the Scriptures.

(3) Cf. 1 S 15, 22; Is. 1, 11. 16; Mic. 6, 6-8.

(4) Ecclesiastes believed that God was not only distinct from the world, but also separated from it. According to Epicurus (cf. above, n. 7 to the Introduction) the gods resided in the intermundia, the spaces between the worlds. The Heb. word for heaven means also ether, upper air; cf. the birds of heaven, i. e. the air, e. g. in 10, 20 (IV, §).

(5) If a man made a vow which he afterwards repudiated, on the plea that he had made a mistake, he was liable to attachment; his property might be seized as security for the payment of the vow and held as a pledge until satisfaction be made.

(6) That is, high favor with the people; a good reputation is better than the finest flavor (cf. our the odor of his good name and a name of evil savor, a malodorous reputation) sweeter than the most precious perfume; cf. Cant. 1, 3: thy name is (thrice-) clarified perfume; see my Book of Canticles (cf. n. 21 on the Introduction) n. 21 on No. 7. There is a paronomasia in the Hebrew: Ṭōv-šém miššémn ṭōv; cf. below, n. 12.

(7) Quiet submission to the will of fate (cf. I, vi), unresisting acquiescence, resignation.

(8) Cf. 2 Macc. 5, 17.

(9) This poor and wise youth is the young king Alexander Balas of Syria (150-145 B. C.) who was a great friend of the Jews (1 Macc. 10, 47). The old and foolish king, on the other hand, is the arch-enemy of the Jews, Antiochus Epiphanes (175-164). Old = patrician, aristocratic; cf. elder = prince, chief and our old man. For wise = religious, friend of the Jewish religion, and foolish = irreligious, see n. 1 on II. Alexander Balas was a boy of very humble origin (Justin says, sortis extremæ juvenis), but pretended to be a son of Antiochus Epiphanes, and his claims were supported (Justin says, totius ferme orientis viribus subcinctus) not only by Attalus II. Philadelphus (159-138) of Pergamum, Ariarathes V. Philopator (162-130) of Cappadocia, and Ptolemy VI. Philometor (181-145) of Egypt, but also by the Jews under the Maccabee Jonathan (161-143) and even by the Roman Senate.

Ps. 45 seems to be the Heb. version of the Greek carmen nuptiale which Jonathan presented at the wedding of Alexander Balas and the Egyptian princess Cleopatra, which was celebrated at Ptolemais in 150 B. C. (1 Macc. 10, 58). It is important to note that this poem does not allude to the ancestry of the groom, only his personal virtues are extolled, while the bride is advised to forget her father's house (the famous dynasty of the Ptolemies) and to submit to the King, should he desire her beauty. This marriage was not a love-match but a political union: three years after the wedding Cleopatra left her young husband and married his antagonist, Demetrius II. Nicator, the son of Demetrius I. Soter who is alluded to in Ps. 45 (v. 7) as the rival of the groom.

Ps. 45 is to be rendered as follows :

- A love-song with skill I indite, i
 1<sup>b</sup> reciting a poem on the King ;
 1<sup>a</sup> My mind overflows with good thoughts,
 1<sup>c</sup> a ready scribe's pen is my tongue.
- 2 Thy beauty is fairer than human, ii thy lips with grace are bedewed ;
 Therefore men<sup>a</sup> bless thee for ever,
 3<sup>b</sup> and give to thee honor and praise.
- 3<sup>a</sup> Gird thou thy sword on thy hip, iii
 4 † † O hero ! hail to thee ! ride
 For truth's sake and humble rightness,* and wonders thy right hand will show thee.
- 5<sup>a</sup> Thine arrows so sharp † do thou notch, † iv
 5<sup>c</sup> and under thee nations will fall ;
 5<sup>b</sup> The foes of the King will perish,
 [and, like a snake, lick the dust.]**
- 6 Thy throne<sup>8</sup> is for ever and ever, v a sceptre of right is †thy kingdom ; †
 7 Thou lovest right, and wrong thou hatest, hast therefore vanquished<sup>8</sup> thy rival. †
- 12() With tribute gladden thy face vi
 the richest, † with gold of Ophir ; † †
 9 But thy brightest gem<sup>e</sup> is the princess who stands at thy right as thy consort. † †
- 8 (With) myrrh, with cassia, and aloes vii are (fragrant) all of her garments ;
 From the ivory palace (resound)
 [the harps and lutes] (to) salute her.
- 13(5) The princess † † in brocaded garments viii with gold most richly embroidered ;
 14 The noble virgin is brought to the King, † † escorted by her own playmates. †

* That is, for the Jewish cause. ** Cf. Mic. 7, 17. † Balas was an impostor.

‡ That is, Demetrius I. (see below, n. 16). The literal translation of this line is: therefore God, thy God, has anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellow.

§ That is, Rhodesia ; see Johns Hopkins University Circulars, No. 163, p. 53, n. 21.

- 10 Oh hearken and incline thine ear, ix forget thy race and thy father's house !
11 Should the King desire thy beauty, submit ; for he is thy lord.
16 In place of thy fathers, thy sons,— x
the princes of earth thou wilt make them ;
17 Thy name will they make ever<sup>κ</sup> famous,

The general enthusiasm for Alexander Balas did not last long: his own father-in-law, Ptolemy VI. of Egypt turned against him, and he was defeated by Demetrius II. in 145 B. C. He fled to Arabia, and five days after the battle his head was brought to Ptolemy—an illustration of Ecclesiastes' saying: 'tis all vanity and a striving for wind.

Transient are seeking and leaving,
transient are affection, aversion,
Transient are love and hatred,
transient are wailing and triumph !

(10) That is, a vain pursuit, a fruitless effort (not vexation of spirit) ; cf. Hos. 12, 1: Ephraim strives for wind and pursues the eastwind, i. e., they strive for what is unattainable, beyond reach. Cf. above, n. 2 on I.

(11) That is, in the right mood, in the proper frame of mind, lit., in the badness (i. e., sadness) of the face the heart (i. e., the mind) is good. Contrast VIII, i.

(12) Lit., thorns. There is a word-play (cf. above, n. 6, and n. 8 on IV) between sir 'pot' and sirim 'thorns' in the Hebrew (Kā-qōl hassirim taht-hassir). The term sirim may denote the thorny burnet (poterium spinosum) which is a most combustible fuel. Thorny and prickly plants abound in Palestine.

(13) This gloss appears to refer to Alexander Balas, who gave himself to self-indulgence, just as his antagonist Demetrius I. and Demetrius I.'s uncle, Antiochus Epiphanes were drunkards. Justin says: Alexandrum insperatae opes et alienae felicitatis ornamenta velut captum inter scortorum greges desidem in regia tenebant. With the Jews, however,

Balas was popular (1 Macc. 10, 47) in spite of his doubtful origin and his failings. The present gloss expresses a different opinion.

(14) Feast.

(15) Lit., from a house of outcasts (Ewald, Verworfenen) he came forth to reign. The Hebrew term sārīm suggests the name of the Syrians and the idea of apostasy or heathenism.

(16) The first was Demetrius I. (162-150 B. C.). Balas reigned 150-145. The glossator has evidently overlooked the brief reign of the young son and successor of Antiochus Epiphanes, Antiochus V. Eupator, who reigned 164-162. Similarly Strabo XVI, 2, 40 (p. 762) disregards the brief reign of Aristobulus I. (104/3) and states that Alexander Jannæus was the first Hasmonæan ruler who assumed the regal title, although Aristobulus styled himself King of the Jews. Cf. n. 12 on the Introduction.

(17) Cf. Dan. 11, 20. 21.

(18) Carousing.

IV.

(1) At the time of the Syrian dominion under Antiochus Epiphanes and his successors many unworthy persons, who betrayed the Jewish cause and sympathized with the Greeks, attained great prominence, while the noblest of the faithful Jews were humiliated. Cf. e. g. 1 Macc. 7, 9; 9, 25; 2 Macc. 4, 8. 13. 19. 25. For fools see n. 1 on II.

(2) Lit., spirit; cf. n. 48 on VIII.

(3) Contrast 12, 7=VIII, 1; also 2 Macc. 7, 9. 14. 36; 12, 44; 14, 46.

(4) Lit., earth, i. e., the netherworld; cf. my note on Exod. 15, 12 (Hebraica, 20, 161).

(5) Constant occupation is a blessing in this world; cf. nn. 4 and 12 on VIII.

(6) That is, the wrongs inflicted upon them.

(7) Lit., and in the hands of their oppressors power.

(8) That is, the wrongs inflicted by them. The Heb. has in both cases; and there was no menahhēm for them; but menahhēm means in the first case comforter, in the second case avenger. The German Tröster means not only comforter, but also a club or rod for inflicting punishment. Cf. n. 12 on III.

(9) Similar pessimistic ideas are repeatedly expressed by Greek writers; cf. Theognis, 425-428; Soph., Oed. Col., 1225-1228. In Cicero, Tusc., 1, 48 we read: Non nasci homini longe optimum esse, proximum autem quam primum mori. Even Socrates regarded death as a recovery from a disease.

(10) Numerous progeny and longevity was the ancient Hebrew ideal of happiness. Cf. Pss. 127, 5; 128, 3 (Hebraica, 11, 143, 150)—Exod. 20, 12; Deut. 5, 16; Ephes. 6, 2; Deut. 4, 40; 6, 2; 22, 7; 1 K 3, 14.

(11) Cf. n. 11 on I.

(12) Lit., seeks, i. e., takes care; He does not leave them in the lurch; cf. n. 15 on I.

(13) Persecuted; cf. n. 1.

(14) This addition may be based on the Horatian Omnes eodem cogimur (published about 23 B. C.).

(15) Lit., look at that which he will be after him; cf. VI,  $\gamma$ ; VII,  $\sigma$ ; VIII,  $\lambda$ . Socrates declared that he did not know what was in store for us after death, but he cherished the hope of a life beyond.

(16) Or bribe (cf. e. g. 1 Macc. 2, 18). Oppression, persecution, adversity often develop the sterling qualities of men, while favor (especially bribes) leads to corruption.

(17) Schiller says, Allzustraff gespannt, zerspringt der Bogen. Wellhausen quotes this phrase at the beginning of c. 17 of his Israelitische und Jüdische Geschichte (Berlin, 1904) p. 258, to characterize the conditions preceding the Maccabean rising in 167 B. C.

(18) Lit., tilled, cultivated.

(19) In spite of all drawbacks a monarchy is best suited to an agricultural country with a settled population. Cf. e. g. Joseph., Ant., xvi, 9, 1; xvii, 2, 1. Even Herod was a good ruler up to a certain point.

(20) The oath of allegiance; cf. Joseph., Ant., xv, 10, 4; xvii, 2, 4; see also Matt. 22, 21; Rom. 13, 1. Socrates strongly emphasized the necessity of obedience to the state and its laws.

(21) Conspiracy, &c. Cf. e. g. Joseph., Ant., xv, 8, 3.

(22) Who can criticize his actions? Even kings under Roman sovereignty (reges socii) had absolute power of life and death over their subjects.

(23) Lit., who observes the law will experience no evil. A law-abiding citizen will be unmolested, cf. n. 13 on II.

(24) There will be a day of reckoning; but premature rebellion is unwise.

(25) Lit., if the ruler's spirit should rise against thee.

(26) Lit., causes to rest, stop.

(27) Lit., a rich man; cf. gloss  $\beta$ . Rich (cf. Lat. rex and German Reich = empire) meant originally powerful, mighty, noble, ruling.

(28) Herod the Great employed a great many spies; often he went out himself at night, in disguise, in order to ascertain the feelings of the Jews toward his government; cf. Joseph., Ant., xv, 10, 4; 8, 4.

(29) Not to have a burial was considered one of the greatest of calamities. At the end of the Babylonian Nimrod Epic we read: He whose dead body is left in the field, his spirit finds no rest in the earth; he whose spirit has no one to take care of him, must eat the dregs of the pot, the remnants of food that lie in the street. Cf. 1 Macc. 7, 17; 2 Macc. 5, 10; 13, 7.

(30) Lit., it comes in(to) vanity and goes in(to) darkness.

(31) Lit., rejoice in them all.

(32) Cf. n. 20 on VII.

(33) The present German Emperor is said to have written in the Golden Book of Munich: Suprema lex regis voluntas, an autocratic modification of the Ciceronian Salus publica suprema lex; cf. Juvenal's Hoc volo, sic jubeo; sit pro ratione voluntas.

V.

- (1) More accurately, palm, flat of the hand.
 (2) More exactly, hollows of the hand.
 (3) Lit., the sight of the eyes, i. e., what is within our reach.
 (4) Lit., wandering of the soul, i. e., extravagant wishes, castles in the air. We must strive for what is within reach, not for that which is beyond it.
 (5) Lit., will have no income.
 (6) There is no permanent gain, it vanishes under his eyes; he can not enjoy it all, he can feast his eyes thereon only as long as it lasts.
 (7) Cf. n. 2 on I. (8) Lit., there is no end to all his toil.
 (9) Lit., and if he has begotten a son, there is nothing in his hand.
 (10) This can hardly be a Heb. imitation of the Greek phrase καλὸν κάγαθόν. The meaning of the Greek term is different; καλὸς κάγαθος is a gentleman, and καλὸν κάγαθόν means a noble act. Cf. n. 57 on VIII.
 (11) Lit., for his mouth.
 (12) Inactivity and indifference are foolish and suicidal.
 (13) An absurd enterprise, a fool's or gawk's errand.
 (14) Lit., may weary him, cf. n. 5 on I.
 (15) That is, one who is so stupid that he does not know how to go to town. Is. 35, 8 affords no parallel; there fools is equivalent to ungodly, cf. n. 1 on II. The phrase seems to be proverbial like our who does not know enough to come in when it rains, or the French il ne trouverait pas de l'eau à la rivière, or the German (a blockhead) mit dem man Wände einrennen könnte.
 (16) Lit., who knows how to walk before the living, i. e., possesses savoir-faire and savoir-vivre.
 (17) Nietzsche would have said: Zweisedler sind besser daran als Einsiedler. If a man stands alone, he cannot enjoy the result of his work so well as the man who can share his pleasure with someone near him. If a man is successful in his toil, and can use his gain to make his family or his friends happy, he will have a better reward than the solitary man. Even honors and recognition afford less satisfaction if we have no one near us to share our pleasure.
 (18) Lit., but the one, how can he be warm?
 (19) Cf. Job 1, 21; Ps. 49, 17; 1 Tim. 6, 7.
 (20) Lit., which he may take away in his hand.
 (21) See n. 4 on VII. (22) Cf. 3, 13 (VII, 33).
 (23) Engrosses, occupies; see the last paragraph of n. 47 to my paper Babylonian Elements in the Levitic Ritual (Journal of Biblical Literature, 19, 71). LXX, ὁ θεὸς περιεσπᾷ αὐτὸν; Vulgate, Deus occupet deliciis cor ejus.

VI.

- (1) Cf. n. 21 on I. (2) See n. 2 on I.
 (3) Lit., wherefore have I been so very wise?
 (4) Lit., evil upon me were.

(5) Lit., also this I saw as wisdom under the sun, and it was great to me. Wisdom means also a wise act, just as vanity is used for a vain pursuit; cf. n. 2 on I, and n. 1 on II.

(6) This refers to the unsuccessful siege of Bethsura, a small but strongly fortified place on the boundary between Judea and Idumea, commanding the road from Jerusalem to Hebron; cf. 1 Macc. 6, 31; 2 Macc. 13, 19. The son of Antiochus Epiphanes, Antiochus V. Eupator, who was but ten years old, marched against Bethsura in 163 B. C., but his efforts were fruitless.

(7) The name of the wise defender of Bethsura has been forgotten, but the name of the traitor Rhodocus is recorded; cf. 2 Macc. 13, 21. Wellhausen, op. cit. (see n. 17 on IV) p. 261, n. 1 says, the Jews would have forgotten Judas Maccabeus, if the Books of the Maccabees had not been preserved by the Church.

(8) See n. 1 on I.

(9) See n. 19 on I.

(10) Study and explore.

(11) Cf. n. 15 on IV.

(12) Devices, theories, speculations.

(13) Cf. Deut. 4, 2; 12, 32; Prov. 30, 6; Rev. 22, 18, 19.

(14) Eccl. 1, 1 says: in Jerusalem; cf. n. 9 and II, v. 00.

(15) Imbibed.

(16) Socrates' conception of wisdom was the knowledge that he knew nothing; and Dubois-Reymond said at the conclusion of his address on the Grenzen des Naturerkennens (delivered at Leipzig in 1872): Ignorabimus.

(17) Lit., beautiful in its time. Socrates was convinced that whatever the deity decrees must be good.

(18) Lit., He has put obscurity (dimness) in their heart (mind). We must read haslēm; cf. Talm. bē-haslēm (or bē'alēm=bē-hē'alēm) 'unconsciously' and κάλυμμα ἐπὶ τὴν καρδίαν ἀντῶν κείται, 2 Cor. 3, 15.

(19) Lit., far from me.

(20) Theoretically.

(21) Practical experience.

(22) Theoretical.

(23) This polemical interpolation extolling wisdom reflects the Stoic philosophy, which regarded the wise man as the impersonation of perfection.

(24) Lit., wisdom is good with an inheritance, i. e., just as good as an inheritance (so AV, margin).

(25) Lit., those who see the sun. The meaning of the passage is: If a man acquires wisdom, he is as well equipped as a man who has inherited a fortune. Wisdom is even preferable to money: it ennobles life and makes it worth living. A poor wise man may be happier than a rich fool. Money may be lost, but wisdom is a treasure which moths and rust cannot consume (Matt. 6, 19; Luke 12, 33). For Schopenhauer's misapplication of this passage see n. 15 to my lecture cited in n. 2 to the Introduction; cf. n. 43 on VIII.

(26) That is, in the right (proper) place. It does not mean that the heart of the wise man beats on the right side of the body. Cf. the German phrase das Herz auf dem rechten Fleck haben and our right-hearted.

(27) According to the beliefs of the ancient Hebrews the heart is the seat of the intellect. His heart is at the right means therefore: his mind is sound (sane, rational, sensible).

(28) That is, in the wrong place. Left-hand=inauspicious; left-handed=awkward, unskilful; left-witted=dull, stupid.

(29) Lit., in the way (errand) which the fool goes. In I K 18, 22 he has a way (AV, he is in a journey) means he has some business; cf. also Is. 58, 13: not doing thy own ways=pursuing thy business; Jud. 18, 5 our way which we go=the errand on which we are going, i. e., our undertaking.

(30) Heb. + the mouth of. Contrast the last line of II, ii.

(31) Confuse, entangle, involve in trouble. (32) Lit., better (than).

(33) Lit., are above the shout of the ruler among the fools.

(34) The fragrant ointment of the dealer in aromatic spices and perfumes; see my Book of Canticles (cf. n. 21 on the Introduction) pp. 7-10 on No. 1.

(35) That is, unfathomable.

(36) Cf. n. 1 on II. Socrates identified virtue with knowledge; he believed that no one consciously did wrong, but only through imperfect cognition. Nietzsche says, many actions are called bad which are merely stupid.

VII.

(1) Lit., what is it doing?

(2) That is, to stimulate, lit., draw, attract (lure).

(3) Lit., do; cf. Greek ἐν πύπτειν and below, n. 25, and n. 57 on VIII.

(4) That is, limited, few; AV, margin, the number of the days, i. e., the few days (cf. AV, margin, Is. 10, 19). Shakespeare says: The sands are numbered that make up my life. Cf. the German Seine Tage sind gezählt, also 2 Macc. 6, 25 (for Swete's ἀκρίτων, for MS. ἀκαρτων, read, with Fritzsche, ἀκαρπιτων).

(5) Heb. + in them. (6) Lit., a wood sprouting (out) trees.

(7) Works accomplished, achievements. (8) What sort of a man?

(9) Forethought. Heb. + under the sun.

(10) Lit., I turned to let my heart despair. (11) If there is a man.

(12) Lit., give it, surrender it. (13) Lit., falls. (14) Lit., griefs.

(15) Lit., and his labor much worry.

(16) Lit., to make his soul see good. (17) Cf. below, gloss θ.

(18) Not only one, but plenty of them; not only one wife, but a whole harem.

(19) Cf. IV, u; VI, γ.

(20) Lit., in darkness, even if his whole life is dreary and cheerless, destitute of joy, gladness and comfort; if he experiences nothing but unhappiness, grief, and worry.

(21) Lit., is from the hand of.

(22) Lit., who can eat, and who can feel?

(23) Lit., who is good before Him.

(24) Heb. + for them.

(25) Lit., to do well; cf. above, n. 3.

(26) Cf. 5, 19 (V, σ).

(27) Cf. 8, 13 (II, rv).

VIII.

(1) As though you were continually feasting and rejoicing; cf. Ps. 23, 5; Prov. 27, 9; Is. 61, 3; Luke, 7, 46. Contrast 7, 3 (III, l).

(2) Lit., see (i. e., enjoy) life. Cf. 2 Macc. 14, 25 (ἠγάπησεν, εἰσπάθησεν, ἔκονώθησεν βίον).

(3) Temporary existence, fleeting life; cf. II, l.

(4) Here Ecclesiastes preaches the gospel of work; see also n. 5 on IV.

(5) Do not be too anxious about the future. You must run some risk if you want to succeed in this world. Act like a merchant who sends his grain to distant lands across the sea. Do not be timid, but cautious. Do not put all your eggs into one basket, do not ship all your goods in one bottom. Be prepared for all contingencies, for we cannot control the future.

(6) Unforeseen occurrences out of the range of ordinary calculation are liable to happen at any time; but if you do not dare to run any risk, you can accomplish nothing.

(7) Even the commonest occupations are attended with risk.

(8) Snakes abound in Palestine and are often found in dilapidated buildings the stones of which are not unfrequently used for new houses. Hillah on the Euphrates e. g. is built entirely with bricks from the ruins of Babylon.

(9) Lit., its wielder must put forth more strength. The risk is not so great, but then it requires a greater effort.

(10) Do not lock the stable door after the steed is stolen. All your precautions help you nothing if you miss the proper moment.

(11) You must not be over-cautious, otherwise you will never accomplish anything.

(12) Work whenever you can; cf. above, n. 4.

(13) These lines form the basis of the well-known German students' song Gaudeamus igitur, originally a penitential song of two stanzas. Stanzas ii and iii are found in a manuscript of 1267; stanzas i-iii were probably known about 1717. The tune, which is a saraband, can hardly have originated prior to 1750.

(14) Amuse yourself while you are young. Pluck those flowers of pleasure which grow alongside the path of life. Be no hermit or ascetic, but do not ruin your health! Cf. the German (or rather, Swiss) song: Freut euch des Lebens, weil noch das Lämpchen glüht; pflücket die Rose, eh' sie verblüht! (by H. G. Nägeli, of Zurich, 1793).

(15) That is, thy wife; cf. Prov. 5, 15-18. In modern Palestinian love-songs a girl is often termed a fountain or a well; cf. my Book of Canticles (see n. 21 on the Introduction) n. 36 on No. 8. The meaning of the passage is: Do not neglect your lawful wife! Try to build up a family while you are in the full possession of your manly vigor!

(16) The sun is the sunshine of childhood when everything seems bright and happy; the moon is symbolical of the more tempered light of boyhood and early manhood, while the stars indicate the sporadic moments of happiness in mature age. More and more the number of rainy days increases, but seldom interrupted by bright moments; and when we are going down the hill, there is no sunshine after the rain, but the clouds return, and everything seems painted gray on gray.

(17) The hands. (18) The bones, especially the backbone.

(19) The teeth.

(20) The eyes begin to lose their luster, and sight becomes dim.

(21) Lit., the doors toward the street are closed, i. e., the exits are barred: secretions are insufficient, or vitiated, or cease; he begins to suffer from retention (ischuria) and intestinal stenosis.

(22) His digestion is impaired.

(23) His sleep is short; he awakens when the birds begin to chirp at daybreak.

(24) He is unable to hear sounds distinctly, and becomes hard of hearing.

(25) He hates to climb a hill, or to go upstairs, because he is short of breath.

(26) Lit., fears are on the way, i. e., he dreads a walk even on level ground.

(27) His hair turns hoary. Dr. Post, of Beirut, says of the blossoms of the almond tree: Although the petals are pale pink toward the base, they are usually whitish toward their tips, and the general effect of an almond tree in blossom is white. Bodenstedt in his Tausend und ein Tag im Orient (2, 237) speaks of the white blossoms of the almond tree as falling down like snow-flakes.

(28) Lit., becomes a burden.

(29) The Heb. term is generally used for locusts in one of their stages of development. It may have been loosely applied to many kinds of insects, just as bug is sometimes used here in America.

(30) Lit., the poor one. In the same way we read in Ps. 22, 21:

From the jaws of the lion save me,
my wretched (life) from the unicorns.

Cf. Wellhausen's translation in the Polychrome Bible.

(31) Lit., breaks through. The soul is freed from the body, as the butterfly emerges from the chrysalis. The Greek word psyche means not only soul but also butterfly.

(32) The spinal chord.

(33) The brain.

(34) The heart loses its power to propel the blood through the body.

(35) The waterwheel, i. e., the whole machinery comes to a stop (paralysis cordis) and this stoppage means dissolution.

(36) The grave.

(37) The hired mourners (qui conducti plorant in funere, Hor., Ars poet. 431).

(38) Lit., before them. Cf. IV,  $\mu$ .

(39) In 1 Macc. 3, 56 we read that when Judas Maccabæus (165-161) organized his army, he discharged all men who were building houses, or were planting vineyards, or were fearful (cf. Deut. 24, 5 and the late Deuteronomistic addition, Deut. 20, 5-8) but at the time of the author of the present gloss there were no exemptions in time of war; John Hyrcanus (135-104) and his successors had no national Jewish army, but mercenaries (Joseph., Ant., xiii, 8, 4). The soldiers of Alexander Jannæus (see n. 12 on the Introduction) were Pisidians and Cilicians. In the army of Herod the Great (37-4 B. C.) there were numerous Thracians, Germans, and Gauls (Joseph., Ant., xv, 8, 4).

The meaning of the present passage is: Just as no one can avert the wind, so no one can avert his death-day. There is no exemption, just as there is no discharge from the ranks, no furlough in time of war. Even the righteous must yield to the inexorable law of death, and wickedness will certainly not exempt those who are given to it, for the wages of sin is death (Rom. 6, 23).

(40) Cf. 2 Macc. 7, 22.

(41) According to Winckler this may be an allusion to Alcimus who commanded that the inner court of the sanctuary should be pulled down (1 Macc. 9, 54); see, however, n. 3 on the Introduction.

(42) Do what you feel inclined to, and enjoy what pleases your eye. This ironical addition is based on Num. 15, 39.

(43) This passage is an interpolation. Ecclesiastes was no misogynist; cf. stanzas ii and x of section VIII (9, 9; 12, 1). Schopenhauer, who quotes Ecclesiastes twelve times, remarks: Der geniale Kōheleth sagt: "Unter Tausend habe ich einen Menschen gefunden, aber kein Weib unter allen diesen;" but three of the seven passages of Ecclesiastes, which Schopenhauer quotes, are interpolations, viz., 7, 4 (III, v) quoted in Schopenhauer's works, vol. 3, p. 731; 5, 78;—7, 12 (VI, v) quoted 5, 352; 6, 462;—7, 29 (VIII, v) quoted 4, 32. See Schopenhauer's Werke edited by J. Frauenstädt, and W. L. Hertslet's Schopenhauer-Register (Leipzig, 1890) p. 22; see also above, n. 25 on VI.

(44) Examining and counting one case after the other, making a statistical investigation.

(45) Lit., calculation (ratio, proportion).

(46) Diogenes is reported to have gone to the market place, with a lighted lantern in broad daylight, to find men. Napoleon I. said to Gœthe: Tous êtes un homme.

(47) That is, an ideal woman. (48) Lit., spirit; cf. n. 2 on IV.

(49) Cf. nn. 1, 19 on I.

(50) More exactly, double-hemistichs, hemistichal pairs; each line in Heb. poetry consists of a pair of hemistichs (with 3+3, 2+2, or 3+2 beats).

(51) Graceful, elegant. (52) He never sacrificed substance to form.

(53) Lit., lords (members) of the assembly, i. e., parts of a collection, lines forming parts of a coherent poem, not isolated apothegms or detached aphorisms. An isolated maxim, a single proverb, as we find them in the Book of Proverbs, which was commonly ascribed to Solomon, is like the point of an ox-goad: it pricks one particular spot for a moment, urging on and stimulating, but has no lasting effect. Sayings, however, which are systematically arranged in a special collection forming a coherent didactic poem, are as impressive as nails firmly driven into a board: they have a firm hold on us. This is said also with reference to the relative difficulty of memorizing isolated sayings as contained in the Book of Proverbs, on the one hand, and the coherent didactic poem of Ecclesiastes, on the other. It is much harder to learn the Book of Proverbs by heart (owing to the lack of connection between the individual verses) than the Book of Ecclesiastes which is written by one shepherd (or leader) on a definite plan and with a definite object in view.

(54) Of Epicurus and his followers.

(55) On Greek philosophy. The Greek philosophers were very prolific writers. Cf. M. Friedländer, Griechische Philosophie im Alten Testament (Berlin, 1904) and E. Sellin Die Spuren griechischer Philosophie im Alten Testament (Leipzig, 1905).

(56) Schopenhauer says, Much reading deprives the mind of all elasticity; it is like keeping a spring perpetually under pressure (quoted by Dr. James Moffat in his Literary Illustrations of Ecclesiastes in The Expositor, Jan. 1905, p. 79) cf. J. Frauenstädt's Schopenhauer-Lexicon (Leipzig, 1871) p. 57 and W. L. Hertslet's Schopenhauer-Register (Leipzig, 1890) p. 127.

(57) This is supposed to be a Grecism, = τοῦτο παντὸς ἀνθρώπων (ἐστὶν ἐπισημ); cf. n. 10 on V; n. 3 on VII. LXX, however, renders: ὅτι τοῦτο πᾶσι ὁ ἀνθρώπος.

(58) Cf. 2 Macc. 12, 41.

(59) Iῆz., the snares, nets, and fetters, and other pitfalls.

(60) Lit., shepherd.

Abbreviations.

AV = Authorized Version; —c. = chapter, cc. = chapters; —EB = Cheyne-Black's Encyclopaedia Biblica (New York, 1899-1903); —JAOS = Journal of the American Oriental Society; —K = The Books of The Kings; —l. = line, ll. = lines; —n. = note, nn. = notes; —p. = page, pp. = pages; —v. = verse, vv. = verses; —ZAT = Stade's Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft; —ZDMG = Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft.

In the translations from the Hebrew, parentheses, ( ), indicate words implied, but not expressed, in the Hebrew, or words supplied for the sake of the rhythm. Brackets, [ ], on the other hand, indicate words or clauses which must be restored in the Hebrew text. In the translation of Ps. 45 (see n. 9 on III) braces, { }, indicate transpositions, the traditional position of the words in the Received Text being marked by { }, while the transposed words are enclosed in { }. Similarly (§) and [η] indicate transpositions of glosses.

EDITION DE LUXE

In compliance with a desire expressed by several distinguished bibliophiles, an edition de luxe has been prepared, printed on the most costly heavy plate paper, in folio, with broad margins, limited to 120 copies signed and numbered by the General Editor. Special prospectus of this large paper edition with sample pages will be sent free on application.

Of Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Psalms, and Daniel, there is also a large paper edition, limited to 50 copies printed on hand-made paper.

Orders should be addressed to THE JOHNS HOPKINS PRESS, BALTIMORE, MD.

POLYCHROME BIBLE IN ENGLISH

CONTRIBUTIONS TO ASSYRIOLOGY AND SEMITIC PHILOLOGY

(Beiträge zur Assyriologie und Semitischen Sprachwissenschaft.)

Edited by Professor FRIEDRICH DELITZSCH, and Professor PAUL HAUPT.

Volume I. 636 pages, royal 8vo., 2 portraits and 14 plates of inscriptions. Price $10.00.—Volume II. 645 pages, royal 8vo., 2 portraits and 83 plates of inscriptions. Price, $10.50.—Volume III. 500 pages, royal 8vo., 48 plates of inscriptions, 30 illustrations, 3 maps and 1 plan. Price, $10.00.—Volume IV. 500 pages, royal 8vo., 19 plates. Price, $10.00.

Attention is called to the very limited edition in which the Beiträge is published. The completion of the sets of the older periodicals (the Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache und Altertumskunde, for example) is often difficult, if not quite impossible.

Subscriptions in America should be addressed to THE JOHNS HOPKINS PRESS, Baltimore.

THE CHALDEAN FLOOD TABLET

The Johns Hopkins Press has on sale a few plaster casts of the eleventh tablet of the so-called Izdubar or Gilgamesh Legends, commonly known under the name of the Babylonian Nimrod Epic. The tablet contains the cuneiform text of the Chaldean Account of The Deluge as restored by Professor Paul Haupt in the second part of his edition of the Babylonian Nimrod Epic. The text is based on thirteen different copies of the Flood tablet, the fragments of which are published in Professor Haupt's edition. The originals were found during the British excavations in the Valley of the Euphrates and Tigris, and are now preserved in the British Museum. The present clay tablet has the size of the largest Deluge fragment ( $8\frac{3}{8} \times 6\frac{3}{8}$  in.) known in the Kouyunjik collection of the British Museum as K 2252. The text has been engraved in clay under the direction of Professor Haupt by Rev. R. Zehnpfund, Ph. D., of Rosslau, Germany.

The casts have been most carefully finished in colored plaster so as to give them the appearance of a real cuneiform clay tablet. The tablet contains in six columns 331 lines of cuneiform writing. An accompanying statement gives explicit directions for the reproduction of cuneiform tablets.

The present tablet will be found especially valuable for academic classes, as it will enable students who have not access to originals to study the cuneiform writing. It is proposed to issue a number of the most important Assyrian and Babylonian texts in this manner.

The tablets are safely packed in boxes and will be sent on receipt of $1.50.

Orders should be addressed to THE JOHNS HOPKINS PRESS, BALTIMORE.
